PREPARING FOR PASSOVER IN BERLIN

85,000 pounds of matzos are being baked in Berlin for distribution to the Jews of Berlin and nearby communities. This is the Sarotti-Fabrik Bakery, the largest in Germany which was closed by the Nazis for ten years when the baking of unleavened bread was banned by official edict. Now the factory is running full blast. In order to accumulate supplies for the coming Passover holiday, the matzos will be purchased and distributed by the Joint Distribution Committee, which is furnishing more than 2,000,000 pounds of matzos and other Passover foods to suffering Jews.
