ary and other agents are working together in harmony and union; yet after a year's hard work, such a mission gives but "six converts," and only two of these show any "decided evidence of piety." There are eight schools, and yet there are only "three promising girls," while two boys and another girl are spoken of dubiously. "During the last two years," says the bishop, "we have had a great number of inquirers, of whom a greater part have gone back to the Jews."

The "Church Journal" pays the bishop a just compliment for his honesty and openness in publishing these results as they are, without attempting in the least to relieve them of their ineagerness. "He sets down, with his own hand, year after year, the statistical proof of the immense disproportion between the outlay and the returns of the mission. He tells us, with calm and conscientious exactness, how few his converts are, what poor stuff they are made of, and what a small proportion, even of them, give any signs of true spiritual character. We heartily wish him in a field where his success in his Master's work may be as great as his candour—and his failure—at Jerusalem."—New York Presbyterian.

PARIS.—Chief Rabbi Isidor has paid a visit to the Jewish prisoners in the Central House of Detention at Beaulieu. The authorities showed him every possible regard, and his exhortations were received with marked attention by the Jewish prisoners.

THE PORTUGUESE SYNAGOGAL MELODIES. — The Rev. Dr. Mayer, of Charlestown, U.S., writes to the "Asmonean" that Mr. Pownoski, his predecessor, and Mr. Da Costa, organist to the congregation, had, 18 years ago, likewise set these melodies to music.

NEW YORK.—"We are credibly informed," says the "Asmonean," "that not less than eight hundred Jewish families, equal to four thousand human beings, are utterly destitute." On March 17th, the committee appointed for the distribution of  $\text{מִסָּד}$  had already distributed 12,155 pounds among 535 families, many poor families yet remaining unsupplied.

A CURIOUS LAPSUS CALAMI.—In a resolution of condolence lately passed by a Jewish society at New York, on the occasion of the death of the editor of the "Asmonean," the following phraseology was used (the Italics are of course ours):—"Resolved, that we tender to his bereaved widow and children our heartfelt condolence, and we trust the Almighty Disposer of all will enable them to bear with Christian fortitude their great affliction." [Since the preceding was in type another number of the "Asmonean" has reached us, in which the adjective "Christian" is declared to be an invention of the compositor.—Ed. J. C.]

SIMPHEROPOL, CRIMEA.—It having been asserted that the Karaites put the vowel points to their scrolls of the law, a correspondent writes to the "Narrator" that he had examined a scroll of the Karaites at Tshufut Caleh, which, as was manifest from internal evidence, had not been written by a rabbinical Jew, and which was without vowel points. The scroll examined had, according to the testimony of the Karaites, been written six centuries ago. The same writer states that the Karaites neither blow the cornet ( $\text{רַבֵּי}$ ) on New Year
